Teaching Experience

Professor at chemistry department with excellent communication skills demonstrated by 7 years of teaching experience. Highly motivated and capable of fostering a cohesive student learning atmosphere. Highly competent in delivering excellent curriculum management and experienced in handling students of varying backgrounds. Possess vast experience in teaching both undergraduate and graduate level courses in chemistry including CHEM 101 and 103, and also supervised several MSc and PhD students. Besides,

- Participated in various departmental, campus and college level programs, activities and committees
- Monitored student progress and provided feedback for improvements.
- Assisted in student registration, advisement and placement activities.
- Provided support in department planning activities.
- Attend professional developmental seminars.
- Performed various other duties assigned by the department head

Research Interests

Possess vast experience in the field of nanotechnology and nanocatalysis. Particularly, interested in the synthesis and in-depth structural and physical characterization as well as the design and potential applications of new nanomaterials, especially metallic nanoparticles and graphene with a variety of chemical, physical, or electronic properties. Special focus of the studies is to gain the deeper understanding of synthesis/structure relationships and structure/function relationships. Another goal of the research is to prepare custom made nanomaterials, focusing on the enhancement of their catalytic properties and applied these materials for various catalytic organic transformations.

Worked as a Post-Doctoral research fellow in the field of NMR and solid-state chemistry of drugs at the Max Planck Institute of Polymer Research, Mainz.
