STUDENT CENTRIC LEARNING METHODS

Student-centered learning methodologies are at the forefront, emphasizing experiential learning, participative engagement, and problem-solving techniques. Experiential learning opportunities abound, with practical hours, workshops, live projects, ad making, educational games, networking events, internships, software application development, exhibitions, industrial visits, field trips and surveys, article writing for newsletters, showcasing newspaper cuttings on notice boards, web designing, and engaging in activities within the psychology lab. Participatory learning methodologies encompass a diverse array of activities, such as seminars, webinars, presentations, Just a Minute sessions, brainstorming sessions, flipped classroom approaches, blogging and blog reviews, group and panel discussions, debates, mock interviews, role-playing exercises, book reviews, quizzes, script writing, poster and model making, peer learning sessions, hackathon, engaging in community services, and hands-on activities within practical laboratory settings.

Plant Identification Day is planned where the students learn to identify and classify the plants in their vicinity, plant dissection studies is carried out to help students explore the internal organization of the plant kingdom. Moreover, workshop on Terrarium creation is organized for the students to acquire professional skills in terrarium making. Apart from these the students are involved in plant propagation sessions and actively participate in giving presentations and seminars.

Problem-solving methodologies are integrated into the curriculum, challenging students with open-ended problems to stimulate critical thinking. Techniques such as Case studies, Brainstorming, Discussion sessions, problem solving sessions, Quizzes and analytical methods empower students to develop effective problem-solving skills essential for success in their academic and professional endeavors. By embracing a learner-centered teaching approach, our college ensures that students are actively involved in their educational journey, equipping them with the skills and knowledge necessary for personal and professional growth.
