2.3.1. STUDENT CENTRIC LEARNING METHODS

Student-centered learning methodologies are at the forefront, emphasizing experiential learning, participative engagement, and problem-solving techniques. Experiential learning opportunities abound, with practical hours, workshops, live projects, ad making, educational games, networking events, internships, software application development, exhibitions, industrial visits, field trips and surveys, article writing for newsletters, showcasing newspaper cuttings on notice boards, web designing, and engaging in activities within the psychology lab. Participatory learning methodologies encompass a diverse array of activities, such as seminars, webinars, presentations, Just a Minute sessions, brainstorming sessions, flipped classroom approaches, blogging and blog reviews, group and panel discussions, debates, mock interviews, role-playing exercises, book reviews, quizzes, script writing, poster and model making, peer learning sessions, hackathon, engaging in community services and hands-on activities within practical laboratory settings.

Problem-solving methodologies are integrated into the curriculum, challenging students with open-ended problems to stimulate critical thinking. Techniques such as Case studies, Brainstorming, Discussion sessions, problem solving sessions, Quizzes and analytical methods empower students to develop effective problem-solving skills essential for success in their academic and professional endeavors. By embracing a learner-centered teaching approach, our college ensures that students are actively involved in their educational journey, equipping them with the skills and knowledge necessary for personal and professional growth.
